

Pyramids

Riley Locke

The trio of travelers slowly wandered past the triangular edifices. The three beige animals being used as transportation were almost hidden within the pool of darkness caused by the coniformed structures. The setting sun created an orange glow throughout the entire sky, while the sandy ground was covered by colossal shadows which came from the behemoth like dwellings. The golden tips of the immense figures looked like they reached the heavens. The mammals below looked excessively petite in comparison.