

Silhouette

Zachary TG

Three ink black silhouettes glided across the open, deserted landscape. Behind them, enormous monoliths towered high above, touching the bright, warm Egyptian sunset. The sand blinded the travelers' sore eyes, it was time for a rest. Though they could not. Even after traveling for many moons, their was still a great distance to go. It seemed as if the barren, deserted terrain would never end.